Learning is HTML, CSS, JS, GitHub and other technologies from this course somehow have proven their use to me. Even though they came with their individual challenges and obstacles, mastering them and fully understanding them is something truly coveted. Html and CSS can be used to quickly manipulate a website. GitHub, to collectively share ideas and works. Their possibilities are in users' hands.

The languages allow Librarians and information service workers to expand their knowledge on the technology they use everyday. Like every other job, constant renovation keeps the requirements desirable. And by doing that they get to stay on track with their ever-changing environment
